3. Browse to the systems or search using one of the following:
- Search: Type the text that is part of the name of a room. This does not search by location.

• Location: Select a location to show only the rooms in the location.
4. Select the rooms you want to add.
5. Click Rooms-> and then OK.

 Tip

You can also use the Outlook address book or Room Finder to search for TelePresence rooms in the list of all rooms in your organization.

Allowing More People to Join Using Video Devices

If you want to allow additional people to join your meeting using video devices that are not available for scheduling in your organization, you can reserve capacity for them. These can be supported personal video devices like the Cisco TelePresence EX90 or Cisco Jabber application.

In the Add call-in participants box, enter the number of additional video devices you want to allow to join.

 Note

This number does not include any devices scheduled using Add TelePresence Rooms.

Using the Advanced TelePresence Settings link, you can customize your TelePresence meeting. See the Advanced TelePresence Settings section, for more information.

Completing Your Booking

1. When you finish entering your meeting details and setting meeting options, click Send.
- The WebEx Productivity Tools communicates with your WebEx site and adds WebEx information to your meeting and then the meeting request is sent.

After your meeting is successfully booked, the meeting appears on your Outlook calendar and contains all the information necessary for you to join the meeting. All invitees receive a meeting invitation with the same information.

Joining the Meeting

When the meeting begins, participants from scheduled TelePresence rooms join using a button on the TelePresence endpoint display or are automatically connected at the meeting start time.

WebEx participants click the Join Using WebEx link in the meeting invitation.

Additional people attending using video devices, join using the Video address specified under Join Using TelePresence in the meeting invitation.

Advanced TelePresence Settings

The following settings allow you to customize the TelePresence portion of your meeting:
