Play, Pause, Fast-Forward, or Rewind Programs

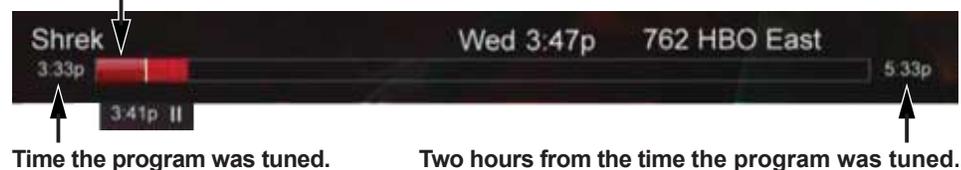

The status bar appears whenever you press play, pause, fast-forward, replay, or rewind while watching a live TV program or a recording.

Live TV Status Bar

The PVR can save up to two hours of a live program. This two-hour period is represented by the status bar. For example, the following illustration of the status bar shows that at 3:33 pm, viewing of this program began and that the PVR will hold (buffer) the program for two hours until 5:33 pm. At 5:33 pm, when the two hours expires, the PVR will continually lose the oldest portion of the program. Or, when the channel is changed, the status bar will be reset.

Dark red segment (left of white line) indicates the portion of the program that is being temporarily saved (buffered). Bright red segment (right of white line) indicates the portion of the program that has been buffered. Uncolored segment indicates the portion of the program that has not been broadcast yet.

The Action tab appears on the status bar whenever you press pause, fast-forward, or rewind while watching a live program or recording.
